

First For Cub Scouts

Oak Park's first Cub Scout Pack, for Oak Park and Huntington Woods youngsters, is to form under the supervision of Rabbi Joseph Klein of Temple Emanu-El.

Temple Emanu-El's Cub Scout Pack will offer full Cub Scout programming to youth in grades 1-5. With the assistance of the North Trails District of the Detroit Area Council of the Boy Scouts, there is a full range of opportunities for both Cub Scouts as well as adult leaders wishing to engage in this family program.

For information, call Matthew Menely, district executive of the North Trails District, (313) 361-1291.

Film Premiere

Who Knows One, a film by native Detroit and third-year Harvard Law School student Sarah Yael Goldfein, features a host of scholars, philosophers, theologians and Jews of all ages and persuasions, talking about how they see God (or not).

Sarah Goldfein

The film will have its area premiere screening on Sunday, Nov.

18, at the Community House, 380 S. Bates, in downtown Birmingham, sponsored by the Jewish Forum.

The program will run 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m. with lunch by Elite Kosher Catering. A post-screening discussion will be led by Rabbi Joe Kanofsky, a consultant with the Centre for Enhancement of Jewish Education in Toronto and former director of the Ronald S. Lauder Foundation in Warsaw.

Registration is $36 per person or $60 for two. Space is limited; pre-paid registration is required.

The Jewish Forum is a new, independent nonprofit organization in Metro Detroit dedicated to presenting innovative, stimulating and sophisticated opportunities for adult Jewish learning, conversation, and debate.

For information, call Nancy Kaplan, (248) 737-1931; e-mail programs@thejewishforum.org; or visit the Jewish Forum's new Web site, www.thejewishforum.org.
